

The Northern Mariner / Le marin du nord

Volume XXX, Number 3

(Fall/Automne 2020)

CONTENTS

Article

Hugh Murphy, Research Organisations in British Shipbuilding and Large Marine Engine Building Manufacture: 1960-1977 (Part III) / 213

Document

Chris Madsen, Rear Admiral Henry John May and Fred Jane's 1898 Naval War Game / 241

Rules for the Jane Naval War Game / 260

Research Note

Brian Jeffrey Street, Bruce Balfour Junor and the Enduring Mystery of the Proceedings on the East Mole at Dunkirk in 1940 / 291

Book Reviews

Colin Brooker, The Shell Builders: Tabby Architecture of Beaufort, South Carolina, and the Sea Islands by John S. Sledge / 301

Margaret Conrad, At the Ocean's Edge: A History of Nova Scotia to Confederation by H.T. Holman / 302

Lt. Cmdr. Robert Crosby, USN, Inspiring Innovation. The John A. van Beuren Studies in Leadership and Ethics. No. 1 by Greg Swinden / 304

- Kevin Desmond, Electric Boats and Ships. A History by Fraser McKee / 306
- Stephen Ellis (translator), The Russian Baltic Fleet in the Time of War and Revolution 1914-1918: The Recollections of Admiral S. N. Timirev by Charles Ross Patterson II / 307
- Marcus Faulkner and Alessio Patalano (eds.), The Sea and the Second World War: Maritime Aspects of a Global Conflict by Jan Drent / 309
- Michael E. A. Ford, Hunting the Last Great Pirate. Benito de Soto and the Rape of the Morning Star by Jacob Bart Hak / 313
- Peter Fretwell, Antarctic Atlas. New Maps and Graphics that Tell the Story of a Continent by Ingo Heidbrink / 314
- Nicholas Frykman, The Bloody Flag: Mutiny in the Age of Revolution by John Matchim / 316
- Daniel Gifford, The Last Voyage of the Whaling Bark Progress. New Bedford, Chicago and the Twilight of an Industry by Olivia L.T. Fuller / 318
- Michael Gillen, Merchant Marine Survivors of World War II: Oral Histories of Cargo Carrying Under Fire by Michael Toth / 319
- Brett Goodin, From Captives to Consuls: Three Sailors in Barbary and Their Self-Making Across the Early American Republic, 1770-1840 by Frederick C. Leiner / 320
- Gelina Harlaftis, Creating Global Shipping: Aristotle Onassis, the Vigliano Brothers, and the Business of Shipping, c.1820-1970 by Stephen Salmon / 323
- Erica Heinsen-Roach, Consuls and Captives. Dutch-North African Diplomacy in the Early Modern Mediterranean by Sam McLean / 325
- John Odin Jensen, Stories from the Wreckage: A Great Lakes Maritime History Inspired by Shipwrecks by Walter Lewis / 327
- Philip Jowett, Images of War. Japan Triumphant. The Far East Campaign 1941-42. Rare Photographs from Wartime Archives by Robert L. Shoop / 329
- Joseph Kelly, Marooned. Jamestown, Shipwreck, and a New History of America's Origins by James Gallen / 330
- Hans Joachim Koerver, The Kaiser's U-Boat Assault on America by Peter K.H. Mispelkamp / 332
- Margarette Lincoln, Trading in War. London's Maritime World in the Age of Cook and Nelson by Barry Gough / 333

- Norman Polmar and John O'Connell, Strike from the Sea. The Development and Deployment of Strategic Cruise Missiles since 1934 by Lisle Rose / 335
- Ian W. Toll, Twilight of the Gods: War in the Western Pacific, 1944-1945 by Louis Arthur Norton / 337
- Brian E. Walter, The Longest Campaign: Britain's Maritime Struggle in the Atlantic and Northwest Europe, 1939-1945. / 338

From the editor

This has been one of the more challenging issues I have overseen. As timelines, schedules and plans changed in response to events, it sometimes seemed as though the contents were a revolving door. Throughout it all, all the authors, both those here and those waiting for a later issue, have been very understanding and helpful, always replying quickly to my requests, (demands?) for answers. To them all, I owe a great vote of thanks. Nor has the copy editing and production been without its moments. To the proofreaders and Walter, our production editor, we all also owe a vote of thanks.

Through it all Faye, our book reviews editor, has been patiently waiting to be told how many reviews would be required. Readers will quickly see that the reviews section is half the normal size. This was a deliberate editorial decision made in consultation with all the team. You may remember that we recently had an issue “on my watch,” to try to maintain some sort of journal schedule, that was only book reviews. A consequence of course was that the supply of reviews was depleted. The decision to run shorter review sections for both this and the next issue is an attempt to rebuild the supply of reviews (in part recently hampered by covid related slow downs at publishers and in the mail) so that starting with the 2021 issue year the new team will be well supplied.

This issue begins with a conclusion - the final part of Hugh Murphy's authoritative study of engine research within the British shipbuilding industry. I am sure that as with his earlier work, sometimes in collaboration with others, this will be an important starting point for those who later examine questions of policy and management in the industry. In my second year as editor (2002), I had the opportunity to publish an article by him with the late Lewis Johnman. The study of shipbuilding has been the focus of Hugh's academic career.

Staying within Britain, but in an earlier century, we then have Chris Madsen's study of the 1898 naval war game developed by Fred T. Jane with Rear Admiral Henry May. His introduction to the document, the rules of the game, provides an interesting look at May's and Jane's lives. The game was an important part of the nascent study of naval strategy and tactics. Those who read the rules carefully will gain an appreciation of the complexity of the subject. Of course Chris is well known to CNRS and in the pages of this journal. It is a pleasure to have him in these pages again.

And as this issue begins with a conclusion, so we end with an introduction. It is a pleasure to welcome to these pages Brian Jeffrey Street. Although he may be new in this forum, I am confident his work is well known to many of our readers. For example, he is the author, with Brian Nolan, of Champagne Navy: Canada's Small Boat Raiders of the Second World War. His career, spanning four decades, has been as a freelance and staff writer, journalist and documentary filmmaker. Some may also remember the CBC television documentary to mark the 50th anniversary of the Dunkirk evacuation. Jeff was the writer and associate producer for it. He identifies that work as the origin of his interest in Commander Campbell Clouston, and so the link to his research note here about Bruce Balfour Junor. Welcome to the journal!

Bill Glover
St David's Day, 2021